

Sustaining Your Hoof Care Business

In this webinar, Corrie Mannion is excited to share with you some of the lessons she has learned about managing a hoof care business in the hopes that you can sustain your business for years to come. We will be discussing topics like safety, boundaries, relationships with clients and horses, self advocacy, compassion fatigue, burnout, and more.

After falling into trimming accidentally and having to learn how to run a business as she went, Corrie built a successful hoof care practice on the east coast and then started all over again on the west coast. Though business was running smoothly, Corrie started to feel the pain (literally and figuratively) of such a physically and emotionally demanding career. But she didn't want to quit so she dedicated herself to personal and professional growth. Struggling with her own mental health, work injuries, client drama, and an inner sense of dissatisfaction were just a few of the obstacles along the way.

Corrie Mannion is a barefoot trimmer and certified PHCP practitioner. She got into hoof care accidentally, all because she fell in love with a horse with failing hoof health and wanted to help. While managing his extensive rehab process, Corrie discovered a new
